

Talent spreads through St. Aidan's school!

By Esme Betmead, Indigo Class

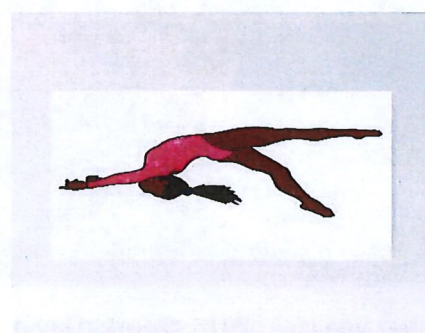

In June, a talent show took place in St. Aidan's lunch hall and many amazing children signed up to perform.

Katie Froggatt, who is ten years old and in Indigo class, organized the talent show with her fellow friends, Lara Booth and Bonnie Johnson. The hall was filled when the first talent show took place and many acts were performed. "I know that the talent show made people more confident about their performances, and made them enjoy showing their capabilities of different talents," Katie Froggatt told the St Aidan's Prophecy. Her favourite act was the Year One magicians, and she also felt that Vivienne, Nalo and Greta, all of them in year four, and Margaux, who is in year five, worked the hardest.

Another year five pupil, Gabriel Martin-Penel, performed with Zoe Andrew and Margaux Martin-Penel, his sister. They performed some complex gymnastics. "I think it's really good that children can show their talents in front of the school. I also did it myself and I thought it was really fun!"

Fearne Boden, from year one, is six years old and signed up for the next talent show. She is going to be performing a ribbon dance with Darys and Beatrice in the hall. "It's very nice that people can show off their talents, they can practise on play dates. All the shows have been really cool because you can do funny things and it's really Fun to dress up!"

St. Aidan's are hoping to have another talent show in September, and for even more children to sign up.

Y6 having fun in the sun

By Frank Gray-Hann, Indigo Class

In early July, Year 6, Tom, Maize, Philip and Elaine all went to Southend.

Anouk Gray-Hann, a pupil from y6, who is 11 years old, went to Southend and went on the Green Scream ride. She told the St Aidan's Prophecy, "When you are scared, don't say, just scream!"

Another pupil from y6 (Thomas Horsely) rated Southend 9/10. His favourite ride was Green Scream. "To the people going in the following years - have fun!"

Elaine, a teacher assistant, went to Southend and rated it 7/10 because it was really stuffy on the way back. "I recommend that we go again, although we should go when it is not so hot."

"Don't say, just scream. Aaagggghh!" Southend scare.

THE ST AIDAN'S PROPHECY

Too hot for sports!

By Gabriel Martin-Penel (Y5 indigo)

This week, St Aidan's were disappointed to find that sports day at Finsbury park track was cancelled.

Noah Lorraine, who is 9 years and in Blue Class, told the St Aidan's Prophecy that he was sad about the cancellation because he finds it fun. His favourite activity is throwing the howler. "I'm not happy its cancelled because I had a good team this year, so I thought we would win!" he told us.

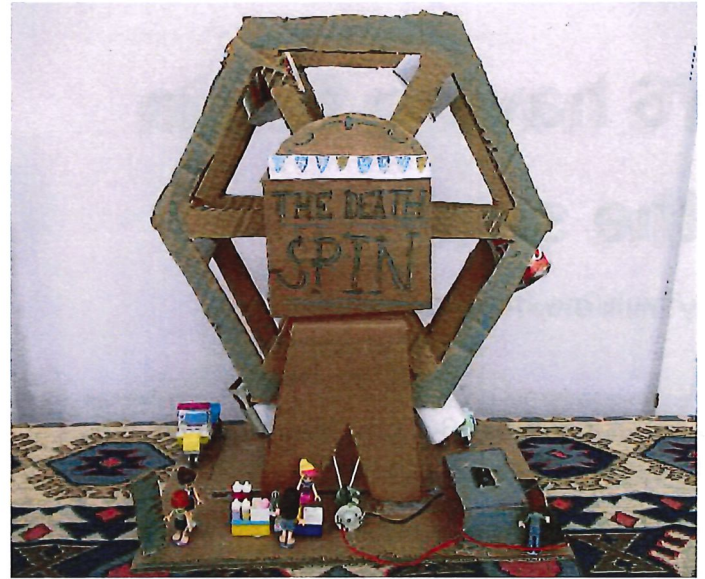

A y3 student, Cariece, told us that she was very disappointed in the news. Her favourite activity is the egg and spoon race. "I'm disappointed, sad and mad!" she said.

Year 6 teacher, Tom, said that he was relieved it was cancelled. He said it would be too hot for sports, though he was sad for the children who wanted to do it. He told us that it's unusual to have temperatures so hot in England. "It's such a shame that we won't be able to see children's talents this year, but safety comes first."

St Aidan's are hoping that next year there will be suitable weather for sports.

Sunny Saturday Summer Fair

By Mert Timustekin, Indigo Class

In June, St Aidan's pupils were invited to the summer fair.

Arthur Carver, a pupil from year 5, said his favourite activity was eating sweets and taking penalty shots in the Ball court. He told the St Aidan's Prophecy, "It was very good, I loved it. My favourite part was scoring a near topcorner."

Another pupil, from year 2, Henry Hoodless, ate sweets, Hot dogs, Burgers, and bought a plant for his dad. He said "My favourite part was the actual summer fair, because I had my first ever coca cola drink!"

The headteacher, Anne Etchells, told us she had a mixture of emotion – happiness and sadness. She says since she's been here, every event has been "a great community event." She's very sad she's leaving and sad that this is her last summer fair.

Next time, they are planning to have matches instead of penalties.
